licenses. A license can only be obtained upon proof of vaccination against rabies. Because the last of the county clinics is over, "Fido" and "Rover" and all the rest will now have to be taken to a private veterinarian's for dog owners to meet the deadline.

Warden Garrett says, "Let's get rid of our 'strays' and take care of our own dogs by attending to vaccination and licensing."

The $2 per dog licenses are obtained at the Court House office of the county treasurer. Owners must show a rabies vaccination certificate obtained during the last three years to purchase them.

All dogs six months and older must be licensed. A special license, at a higher price, must be obtained for a kennel of dogs.

Young Farmers Meet Feb. 6-7

The Annual State Convention of Young Farmers of Virginia and Young Homemakers of Virginia and Future Homemakers of Virginia will be held at the Hotel Roanoke, Roanoke, Va., Feb. 6-7, 1970. Approximately 500 members of the local Young Farmers and Young Homemaker associations are expected to attend the convention which gets underway at 1:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 6. The program is sponsored by the Agricultural Education Service and the Home Economics Service of the State Department of Education in cooperation with the local school divisions.

Sam Davidson, Appomattox, is state secretary.

G. Curtis Mast, Animal Science Specialist at VPI, will speak at the opening session of the convention. His topic is "Gearing Up For Future Livestock Production." This presentation will be followed by a reaction panel on the above subject.

Mrs. Irene Meyers, Lecturer, Women in Industry and Travel, will make the main address at the joint banquet session of Young Farmers and Young Homemakers Friday evening. One of the highlights of the banquet session will be the recognizing of Virginia's Outstanding Young Farmer Family for 1969.

The Young Homemakers of Virginia and the Young Farmers of Virginia will each present an Honorary Membership and will recognize the Outstanding Association in their respective organizations. Members of both groups will participate in group discussions

Members Will Attend YH Convention

Young Homemakers of Virginia, an organization of young women in adult education in home economics, will hold its fourteenth annual state convention at Hotel Roanoke, Roanoke, Va., Feb. 6-7, 1970.

Using Family Income for Family Security will be the theme of the organization for the year ahead and will be the subject of the keynote address on Friday afternoon at the opening session of Young Homemakers of Virginia.

Mrs. Ann Drivers, president, a member of the Turner Ashby Chapter, Dayton, Va., will be in charge of the sessions.

At the Friday afternoon and Saturday meetings, awards will be made to individual Young Homemakers whose outstanding accomplishments in enriching family living have been recognized by their chapters. Selected chapter groups will receive recognition as Outstanding Chapters; others will receive awards for work on Family Safety and on Membership Growth and Development.

A banquet and breakfast will be held jointly with Young Farmers of Virginia.

At the banquet, the Young Homemakers will present Honorary Membership to persons outside the organization who have made outstanding contributions to the development of adult education in home economics, and specifically Young Homemakers of Virginia.

The YHV organization will present a scholarship to one of its members who will further her own education. The scholarship is made available to YHV members who have been out of school for a period of time and plan to enroll for further study or training. Much of the scholarship has been generated by the additional impetus to continuing education.

Members of the Ode Chapter who are planning to attend are: Mrs. Merlyn Cox, Chapter President, and Miss Helen Phelps. The advisor of this chapter is Mrs. Ma Thomas, Home Economics teacher, Appomattox High School.

Delegates from the Appomattox Chapter are: Mrs. Louise Kinney, Mrs. Helen Fraziers, Mrs. Rose Burnette, Mrs. Shirley Tanner, Mrs. Evelyn Carroll, Mrs. Kathleen Robertson, and Mrs. Barbara Jordan.

Concord adviser, Mrs. Mary Braford, Homemaking teacher, Rustburg High School.

"CC" Day For Seniors

Tuesday was "CC" day for seniors of Appomattox High. "CC" means "come comfortable", so for the girls this meant pants suits or slacks and big lens on sunglasses, beads and clanking jewelry to set the scene. At least two senior boys had own "mini" look with blue jeans cut off above his knees. The warmer weather called everybody outdoors for the photo -- and who can blame anybody for celebrating a spring like day with an impromptu balancing act!

Doll Collector Visits Harveys

Mrs. George Woodson of Richmond, who has one of the largest collections of antique and unique dolls in the South, visited Mrs. T. C. Harvey, Sr., last Tuesday to get a first hand look at the Presidents' wives dolls that William and Mrs. Harvey are making.

She said, "These dolls are unique because each one is sculptured to look like the person they represent such as Mrs. Roosevelt's mouth, Mrs. Eisenhower's bangs, Mrs. Johnson's nose, Mrs. Nixon's high check bones."

Mrs. Woodson already has the Doughgirl, Lula McLean and Silent witness dolls, made by the Harveys in her collection, and hopes to add the First Ladies as soon as available.

The Doughgirl trademark covers all the sculptured head dolls made by the Harveys, in their own handmade molds. They also make other reproductions, made in commercial molds and repair and replace missing parts for old antique dolls.
